RE: CRC Volumetric Mobile Mixers produced by Reimer International, Inc.

Dear Mr. Davis,

Thank you for your inquiry regarding the newly formed Volumetric Mixer Manufacturer Bureau (VMMB). As you are aware, Volumetric Mobile Mixers have been around for over 30 years, and have been used in every application imaginable.

One of the first things that the VMMB has done is develop a set of standards for the manufacture of volumetric mixers. Units having the VMMB rating plate will have met all of the manufacturing limits, and passed all of the uniformity tests required by ASTM C-685, the standard written for concrete made by volumetric mixers. The tests include slump, air entrainment, percentage of aggregate, unit density, and compressive strength. This means that the concrete produced by these machines can meet any mix design requested, and do so consistently. CRC Concrete Raising of America's calibrated, continuous mobile mixers meet these standards.

In addition, the customer does not need to worry if (he) has calculated the size of his order exactly, since the material is produced at the time of delivery. He does not have to be concerned about the properties of the concrete -any mix desired can be provided. And he does not have to pay for material he did not need. He can have exactly as much or little as needed. Further note that the concrete produced by the Volumetric Mobile Mixer will often exceed the stated strength of the mix design simply because it is fresh.

There will always be a market for a service that provides the customer with what he wants, when he wants it, and in the amount that he wants.
